Pursuant to Ohio Revised Code 303.21(A) the use of land and construction of structures for agricultural purposes is exempt from zoning regulation; furthermore, Ohio Revised Code § 3781.061 provides exemption to the public safety and construction code and permitting requirements for structures deemed to be for agricultural use.

I herein claim the Agricultural Use Exemption from building and zoning regulation based on the following information:

I understand that this Agricultural Use Exemption from the Clinton County Zoning Resolution and Ohio Building Code applies only to buildings or structures used for agricultural purposes as described in O.R.C. § 303.21. I understand that any material use of the building or structure for non-agricultural purposes will void this exemption. I understand that changing to a non-qualified use in the future will void this exemption. I understand that if the Agricultural Use Exemption is voided or lost, then full compliance with all building and zoning regulations including payment of fees will be required.
